

Allegany College of Maryland's MLK Grant
Presents...

"An Overview of Allegany County African-American History: People, Places, and Events"

Join Us

Date: Tuesday Evening, March 25, 2008
Time: 7:00–8:00 p.m. (Discussion to follow)
Place: ACM Theatre, College Center

*Four little girls and neighborhood friends entering Cumberland's Virginia Avenue School on the first day of school integration in Allegany County—
From the Cumberland Evening Times, September 6, 1955*

Guest Speaker:
Albert Feldstein,
Local Amateur Historian
and Author

- * Multi-Award Winning Regional Historian
- * Published over 30 books, prints and videotapes depicting history of Allegany, Garrett and Washington Counties

The lecture will feature a series of vignettes and readings from a website entitled, "Allegany County African-American History", recently developed by Feldstein in cooperation with the Western Maryland Historical Library. Among the topics to be touched upon in the presentation, and as it relates to local history are slavery and slave owners, religion, the military, education, integration and segregation, and the Ku Klux Klan.

"This project was made possible by a grant from the Maryland Humanities Council, through support from the National Endowment for the Humanities. Any views, findings, conclusions, or recommendations expressed in this program do not necessarily represent those of the National Endowment for the Humanities or the Maryland Humanities Council."